

Some of My Best Mates are Metrosexuals (Myth New Zealand Book 2)

Its tough enough being a man of the modern world but in New Zealand, it can be even more so. In the land of rugby, racing and beer, the role of Kiwi bloke has been changing. Its confusing when your hero All Blacks apply eye liner and your mates carry handbags. Author Justin Brown set out on a mission to find out whats happened to the New Zealand male. Having turned 36? and discovered by chance thats the age of the average New Zealander, Brown figured it was time he rediscovered the country hed grown up in. He faced up to some national sacred cows. Did the good keen bloke still exist in New Zealand? Can you still be a real man and use moisturiser? Browns findings reveal a side to the nation you might not have expected. His light-hearted approach will make you smile as he wades through the hair gel and cow paddocks to find the Kiwi male. Essential reading for Kiwis and anyone planning to go to New Zealand.

Other titles in the Myth New Zealand collection are Whatever Happened to 80 Million Sheep?; The Greatest Place to Bring Up Kids?; Whatever Happened to Our National Dish?; plus, Myth New Zealand (All the Stories from Series One), which includes two bonus chapters. Browns Myth New Zealand collection has earned glowing reviews: A guidebook that explains what makes Kiwis tick - Jackie Russell, The Times An insightful humourous meander through our history with a look into our future - M2 magazine I borrowed it off a friend and Im not giving it back entertainer and author Max Cryer Justin Brown is the natural heir to Max Cryer, except hes shorter and cant play the piano. national broadcaster Jim Mora A humorous and provocative look at New Zealand and the way we see ourselves today book critic Graham Beattie I would like to say I have read it, but my wife nicked my copy and is laughing so much reading it , she will not give it back until its
